

An Ideal Destination

Details of the fantastic features and wonderful characteristics of the Puglian region that make it an ideal destination.

The region has many characteristics which make it an attractive holiday destination:

- Exceptional climate from April to October.
- Clear crisp winter months, following a short period of rainfall in early autumn.
- Famous as a region for its wines, pastas and fruit.
- Sandy beaches with both public areas and privately owned lidos.
- Small towns and villages, lively in the mornings and late into the evening and contrastingly sleepy during the traditional siesta hours of 1 to 3 each afternoon.
- Unique architectural features, particularly the region's Trulli (small conical-roofed dwellings) which exist exclusively in the Itrian valley of Puglia.
- Increasingly easy, low cost access from the UK direct to Bari and Brindisi airports.
